

Lecture Summary

Spotted deer and monkeys cooperate as lookouts, except at waterholes where macaques chase deer away. A tigress hunts in the forest, unfazed by monkey alarm. She's a skilled hunter, successfully killing prey more often than average to feed her hungry cubs. Eureka.